The Threat

Any business that puts people behind the wheel is exposed to the many risks associated with vehicles: direct and vicarious liability, vehicle damage and replacement, theft and fraud, impoundment and lost revenue, legal and administrative costs, rising insurance premiums and more. In today's competitive market, even a single incident can have dire consequences.

The Challenge

Many studies have shown that drivers with invalid or suspended licenses are directly responsible for a disproportionate number of accidents, injuries & deaths. With licenses becoming easier to lose and harder to renew, the number of these high-risk, invalid or suspended drivers is expected to increase in coming years. The pressing question becomes: How can you protect your business?
